AUDIENCE & CONTENT

Joe speaks to a wide range of audiences, including first responders, mental health professionals, educators, students, community organizations, faith communities, and the general public. Presentations are tailored to fit your audience, goals, and event theme.

PRESENTATION FORMATS

Keynotes, workshops, training sessions, and facilitated discussions. Presentations typically run 45-75 minutes with additional time for questions, conversation, and book signings.

VENUE & A/V REQUIREMENTS

Please provide a location with appropriate technology support, including:

- A projector with HDMI adapter
- A screen or display
- REQUIRED: Wireless lapel (lavalier) microphone with a functioning sound system. A handheld microphone is not an acceptable substitute.
- A brief technical check before the event is required.

SENSITIVE SUBJECT MATTER

Presentations may include personal experiences involving mental health challenges, suicide, depression, and related topics. Organizers should consider the needs and age-appropriateness of their audience and, when possible, make support resources available.

SCHEDULING & PREPARATION

- To ensure every audience receives Joe's best, travel and presentation schedules are intentionally structured to allow adequate rest, preparation, and recovery.
- Joe generally limits presentations to two sessions per day.
- A 40-45 minute period in a quiet, private space before the presentation is appreciated for final preparation.

TRAVEL & LOGISTICS

Travel, lodging, meals, and related expenses are included in the speaking proposal. Event schedules should allow sufficient time for travel and rest.

PROMOTION & PUBLICITY

Joe is available for select television and/or radio interviews. Promotional support, including event description, photos, and sample graphics can be provided and tailored to your needs.

SPEAKING FEES

Fees are quoted individually based on the event location, presentation length, number of sessions, and travel requirements. Joe has also qualified for education and mental health grants in other communities, and can provide information to support your grant application if needed.
